When you finish your exams this summer, we don't want that to be the last time you're in touch with your school.

We are working with Future First to help us keep in touch with our former students, also known as 'alumni'.

What is Future First?

Future First is a charity which helps schools like ours to stay in contact with their leavers from day one.

We'll contact you a few times a year with school news and opportunities to stay involved.

Plus we want to hear about your pathways after leaving school!

Why keep in touch?

- *Stay connected
- Improve your CV by volunteering your time
- Inspire students by sharing advice and guidance through your experiences*

Role models

You could come back and...

- Talk to year 9s about choosing GCSE options
- Talk to year 11s about exams, revision and next steps
- Let students know what the first year after leaving school is really like
- Help in lessons in your favourite subjects

Who is signed up?

Some former students already part of your alumni community:

- Paul, a director and producer of sports TV
- William, a firefighter
- Lucy, a designer of children's toys
